

Diversity Internship Program

Set your Sail. Explore opportunities outside your field of study.

Banking is a diverse field that offers excellent development and growth opportunities for inquisitive minds – and in particular for female talents.

Are you one of those curious, interested and open-minded women? Are you studying a subject outside of banking & finance?

Then take the opportunity and be part of our Diversity Internship Program 2019.

We value diversity and benefitting from a wide range of perspectives.

Being good at banking is much more than knowing about financial products, it is foremost about being a great listener, understanding your client's needs and concerns and finding personal solutions while building strong and lasting relationships.

So, your field of study might as well be outside the traditional banking subjects. What's more important is that you are curious and a great communicator, you like to work together with people, and that you have an entrepreneurial mind-set. If you feel that this is describing your own strengths why not explore the field of banking and expand your horizon?
