CREDIT SUISSE GROUP ADOPTS A NEW VERSION OF THE CREDIT SUISSE BRAND WITH A NEW LOGO AS ITS SINGLE BRAND

Zurich, June 29, 2005 - Credit Suisse Group today announced that following the merger of its two Swiss banks in May and the appointment of the Executive Board for its Banking Business last week, it has decided to adopt a single brand for its Banking Business. As of January 1, 2006 a new Credit Suisse logo will represent the Private Banking, the Corporate and Investment Banking and the Asset Management divisions.

This decision was made after an extensive process of research with employees, clients and other stakeholders. The research showed that it makes sense from the perspective of both our clients and our employees to move to a single brand to represent the fully integrated global bank. Credit Suisse is a powerful global brand. Unifying the main Banking Business under the Credit Suisse name will allow the bank to best communicate with one face to the market, work better across businesses to focus relentlessly on clients' needs and enhance a strong consistent reputation.

Credit Suisse will also revitalize the brand positioning and visual identity so they reflect both its long-standing banking heritage and its tradition to innovate.

The new logo is designed to capture the spirit of what Credit Suisse is and what it aspires to be. It expresses the dynamism and innovation associated with investment banking, private banking and asset management, as well as the discretion and prestige associated with the Swiss banking heritage of Credit Suisse.

The new brand identity will take effect when the new integrated organization is in place on January 1, 2006.
