

Credit Suisse Balance Optimizer

Efficient management of your available liquidity

Would you like to manage your available liquidity according to your own needs? With the Credit Suisse Balance Optimizer, you make your own rules for automated account transfers.

Do you manage your money yourself and make daily online banking transfers between your accounts? Does this cost you a lot of time and effort? Starting now, with the Balance Optimizer, Credit Suisse gives you the option of automating your liquidity. Automated account transfers are made on the basis of the rules that you define thereby letting you manage the liquidity available in your account according to your wishes. For instance, you can compensate for a negative balance in your main account with a transfer from a secondary account, thus avoiding debit interest. You can also automatically transfer any surplus from your main account to another account within your client relationship (e.g. household, vacation, or savings accounts).
